Objectives of the seminar

- Enable participants to share their points of view, their needs, their knowledge and their ideas concerning research with Aboriginal peoples;
- Examine the Chapter 9 of the 2nd edition of the Tri-Council Policy Statement (TCPS2), which focuses on the ethics of research involving Aboriginal peoples in Canada;
- Contribute to the reflection on the addition of a new section, about research with Aboriginal peoples, in UQAT’s Ethics Policy for Research Involving Human Subjects;
- Determine concrete ways to respond to principles of research ethics in accordance with the needs and wishes of Aboriginal communities and organizations.

What is a World Café?

The World Café is a creative process intended to facilitate constructive dialogue and the sharing of knowledge and ideas, in order to create a network for discussion and action. This process reproduces the ambience of a café, in which participants discuss a question or a subject in small groups around a table. At regular intervals, facilitators move from table to table. Once arrived at a new table, the facilitator summarizes the preceding conversation for participants. So, conversations in progress are “fertilized” by the ideas from preceding conversations with the other participants. At the conclusion of the process, the main ideas are summarized during a plenary session and possibilities for follow-up are subject to discussion.

Dr Marlene Brant Castellano

Marlene Brant Castellano is a Mohawk of the Bay of Quinte Band and Professor Emeritus of Trent University. She held a faculty appointment in Trent's Native Studies Department from 1973 to 1996, providing leadership in the development of the Department and in the emerging discipline of Native Studies. From 1992 to 1996 she served as Co-Director of Research with the Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples (RCAP) with particular responsibility for drafting the integrated research plan, directing social-cultural, historical and community-based research, and editing and writing major portions of the final report under the direction of Commissioners. She facilitated the work of the Aboriginal subcommittee which drafted RCAP's Ethical Guidelines for Research now widely used as a reference for ethical research in Aboriginal contexts. As a member of the Interagency Advisory Panel on Research Ethics she led the working groups drafting Chapter 9 of the second edition of the TCPS adopted in 2010.

Professor Castellano's formal education is in social work (MSW 1959) and adult education (OISE/UofT 1980-81). Her teaching, research and publications are deliberately bicultural, promoting discourse between the worlds of Aboriginal knowledge and experience and the language and protocols of academics and policy makers. In recent years her writing has focussed on respectful treatment of Aboriginal knowledge in research. The inaugural issue of the Journal of Aboriginal Health published by the National Aboriginal Health Organization (NAHO) in 2004 includes her paper "Ethics of Aboriginal Research."

Professor Castellano has served on the Institute Advisory board of the CIHR Institute of Aboriginal Peoples' Health and the College of Reviewers for Canada Research Chairs. She has been honoured with LLDs from Queen's University, St. Thomas University and Carleton University, induction into the Order of Ontario and a National Aboriginal Achievement Award. Dr. Castellano was named an Officer of the Order of Canada in 2005.

Dr Marlene Brant Castellano has published the two following articles:

Manon Champagne received a Ph.D. in education from the Université du Québec à Montréal (UQAM). She is a Professor in UQAT's Health Sciences Department, where she teaches courses on end-of-life issues, communication, qualitative research and research ethics. As a researcher, she is particularly interested in the psychosocial aspects of pediatric palliative care, in volunteerism in palliative care, in action research and in participatory research. She has been Chair of the UQAT Research Ethics Committee since June 2009.

Suzy Basile comes from the Atikamekw community of Wemotaci, she has a Bachelor degree and a Masters degree in Anthropology (Tourism entrepreneurship in an Aboriginal environment). She is the Aboriginal Project Manager with the Université du Québec en Abitibi-Témiscamingue (UQAT), at the Val-d’Or campus. She is also currently enrolled in the Environmental sciences Ph.D. program of the UQAT and is interested in the role and the place of Aboriginal women in land and natural resource governance. Mrs Basile was involved in the development process of the Assembly of First Nations Québec and Labrador’s research protocol as well as the revision underway.

Mr. Asselin holds a B.Sc. in biology with a speciality in ecology from Sherbrooke University (1997), a M.Sc. in biological sciences (forest ecology) from Montreal University (1999), and a Ph.D. in biology (palaeoecology) from Laval University (2005). He was postdoctoral fellow in palaeoecology at UQAT between 2004 and 2007, before joining the department of humanities and social development as a professor. He holds the Canada Research Chair in Aboriginal Forestry and is a regular member of the NSERC/UQAT/UQAM Industrial Chair in Sustainable Forest Management. His research interests focus on integrated and sustainable management of natural resources, social and aboriginal forestry, forest ecology, and palaeoecology. Since 2009 he is a member of UQAT's Research Ethics Board.

Ms. Julien has completed a Ph. D. in clinical sciences in 2008 [a program of the Université de Sherbrooke offered by extension at the Université du Québec en Abitibi-Témiscamingue (UQAT)]. She is an associate professor in the Health Sciences Department of the UQAT. Her research focuses principally on endogenous pain control mechanisms. She is currently interested by the chronic pain burden among Aboriginal peoples. She is a member of the UQAT’s Research Ethics Board since 2007.
